

Today Girl Say No to Child Marriage: A Powerful Voice for Change

The Stories of the Girls

The girls in Today Girl Say No to Child Marriage come from all over the world. They are from India, Bangladesh, Ethiopia, and other countries where child marriage is common.

One of the girls in the book is named Lakshmi. She was forced to marry at the age of 11 to a man who was twice her age. Lakshmi was terrified of her husband and she was often beaten and abused.

Another girl in the book is named Fatima. She was forced to marry at the age of 13 to a man who she had never met before. Fatima was raped by her husband on their wedding night and she was forced to have sex with him every night after that.

The stories of Lakshmi and Fatima are just two examples of the millions of girls who are forced into marriage every year. These girls are denied their basic rights and freedoms and they are often subjected to violence and abuse.

The Call to Action

Today Girl Say No to Child Marriage is a call to action for us all to do more to end child marriage. We must speak out against this harmful practice and demand that girls be given the opportunity to reach their full potential.

Here are some things that you can do to help end child marriage:

- Educate yourself about the issue of child marriage.
- Talk to your friends and family about child marriage.
- Support organizations that are working to end child marriage.
- Write to your elected officials and demand that they take action to end child marriage.

Together, we can make a difference. We can end child marriage and give girls the opportunity to reach their full potential.
